General Notes: Zachary Yewdall the Quaker was survived by only one son and one daughter at his death in 1709

I Zachary Yewdall the Quaker was survived by only one son and one daughter his death in 1709 His son Thomas was also a Quaker and in 1702 married Grace Parker, who lived nearby in Idle. Martha Hird and Esther Holmes were asked by the Rawdon Meeting to report on her clearness, and did so five weeks later. (1) But Carcase End was not then a large house It was adequate for one familv. and indeed many families had to make do with much less, but it may have been rather a squash for two families, especially as Grace very soon became pregnant. There was probably no great shortage of money, so when the tenancy Levenithorpe Hall became vacant, Thomas decided to rent it from its owners, the Horton family,

There had been a fulling mill at Leventhorpe since at least 1311, standing where Bell Dean and Pinchbeck Brooks meet, just back from the road. The hall itself, though no longer had any great pretensions and had become just a large farm, was perhaps a hundred years old.

The site had been the original home of the Leventhorpe family for three hundred years or so before that, and there may have even been a moated before the Leventhorpes left it to the Lacy family about 1500. (Information provided by Bradford Local History Library) It was a goog no-nonsense sort of house, just right to bring up what Cudworth called "sturdy Yewdalls" (see Round about Bradford). Thomas and Grace Yewdall and family moved in there about 1710. They produced seven children over 12 years. Mary
